BEAT MOTHER GETS 5 YEARS

CURTIS RACHAU, QUITMAN, GIVEN PENITENTIARY TERM.

EIGHT YOUTHS FINED

"Wild Parties," Inspired By Bootleg Liquor, Their Downfall.—Wife Deserter Is Sentenced.

Curtis Rachau, 38 years old, was sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary, when he pleaded guilty this afternoon in Circuit Court to a charge of having beaten his mother, Mrs. Rebecca Stice of Quitman.

Rachau was charged with felonious assault. His attack on his mother took place Friday night and he was arrested Saturday night at the home of a brother-in-law, about ten miles southwest of Quitman.

When Mrs. Stice, who is about 60 year old and nearly helpless, was brought into the courtroom to testify, she fainted and fell in a heap. She was carried out of the room.

Rachau admitted he had "slapped" his mother. Prosecuting Attorney Geo. Pat Wright said the mother had told him that Rachau had threatened to "cut her heart out."

Eight youths, the oldest of them 21, were given fines this morning in Circuit Court this morning as the result of "good times" inspired by bootleg whiskey.

Six were the Gentry County boys who were arrested near Parnell after disturbing a party at a farm home near there. They were charged with possession of intoxicating liquor and pleaded guilty. Each was fined $200, but upon pleas of previous good behaviour and industrious habits they were paroled on payment of the costs in the case.

The boys were Jackson E. Dalby, Raymond Dalby, Raymond Garrett and Dale, Raymond and Lester Wharton. The fines are to be re-imposed should any of the young defendants "break over" again.

Two Others Fined $100

Kenneth Casaday and Ulyss Rasnic, charged with having anticipated in a somewhat wilder "party," in which they employed a revolver, each pleaded guilty and they were fined $100 and costs, with no parole.

Rasnic, 19 years old, formerly lived with his family near Barnard but now lives in Andrew County. Casaday, 21, lives at Caywood, also at Andrew County. The offense with which they were charged took place in and near Barnard. The fathers of both boys were present in court and testified to their previous good behavior.

In imposing the fine, Judge John M. Dawson delivered a lecture from the bench in which he declared: "The country is full of murderers who started out like you boys. They get filled up with bootleg whiskey, go to some movie with a "bad man" here and then go out to rob somebody.

"An honest man has no business with a gun. He may say he carries it for protection, but the highwayman is ready to shoot; the honest man is not, and he is killed. The government ought to prohibit the sale of revolvers to any but officers of the law."

A similar lecture was given the six Gentry County boys.

Jail, Fine for Wife Deserter

William Belding, another young defendant, pleaded guilty to a charge of wife abandonment and was fined $1,000 and given a jail sentence of one year.

Edward Anderson, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle laws, pleaded guilty and was fined $5.

The state case against Harvey Weir charged with carrying a concealed weapon, was continued by agreement, as was a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor against Ross Albright.

Two cases against Dow Huntsman, one charging possession of mash and the other the manufacture of intoxicating liquor, were continued by agreement, and similar action was taken in two new cases filed against him, one charging possession of mash, tub, etc," and other manufacture and possession. He gave $500 bond in each case.

Mrs. Blazier Given Divorce

Pearl Blazier filed suit this morning and was granted a divorce from Roscoe Blazier, who is now a prisoner in the county jail. She was granted the custody for nine months each year of their one child.

Other proceedings of circuit court were:

CROY'S STORY TO BE STAGED

"TEEY HAD TO SEE PARIS" TO BE IN MOVIES TOO.

BOOK A BIG SUCCESS

New Story Has Nodaway County Setting.—Homer is Acclaimed Champion Fried Mush Eater.

"They Had to See Paris" will be staged on Broadway by January 1 and will probably be filmed within the next year, according to Homer Croy, author, who arrived in Maryville Saturday night for a short visit at the home of his mother, Mrs. A. J. Croy.

The book has had a remarkable success, Mr. Croy said, and he has had favorable reports from all sections of the country.

The staging of the story, however, will delay book sales, Mr. Croy believes, but it is a great compliment for the author to have his story dramatized. The dramatist also gets a good share of the money, but Homer expects to make a little for himself out of the venture.

So successful has "They Had to See Paris" been, Mr. Croy has decided to go to London and write a sequel about the Peters' family there. He will be in London four or five months and will live with Englishmen during the entire time in order to get the English viewpoint as well as the American's viewpoint of the English.

Homer's next work will be "Big Enough to Go With the Girls," which will be printed serially in the Kansas City Star magazine, beginning July 4. The scene is laid in Nodaway County and Maryville is known as Junction City.

The Maryville author was a speaker at the Journalism Week program at the University of Missouri last week. In 1907 Mr. Croy walked away from the University. He was never graduated, he explained; he flunked a course in English. So touchy was he about that failure he didn't tell his wife about it until five years after their marriage. He was the first student at the first school of journalism at Columbia. Last week, he visited the University for the first time since his abrupt departure in 1907.

One of the chief reasons why he came to Maryville Saturday night, Homer explained this morning, was to eat fried mush with his good friend, J. Fred Hull, who claims to be the champion fried mush eater of Northwest Missouri. The two were to meet yesterday to munch much mush but Homer reports that Fred Hull pulled his championhsip flag down and Homer was awarded the decision by a unanimous vote of the judges.

Mr. Croy left this afternoon for Chicago. He will then go to New York and plans to leave within the next few days for London.

The automobile belonging to L. E. Forsyth was damaged and five occupants were scratched and bruised late last night when the car turned over into a ditch, six miles south of Clarinda. Those in the car at the time of the accident were Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Townsend, and Mrs. Lavenceour Michau. Mrs. Michau was returning home from Omaha where she has been spending several months with her daughter, Mrs. F. G. Shoemaker, jr.

Following the accident, the Maryville people went to Clarinda, where they hired another car and returned home.

THE PURPOSE WHAT COUNTS

GIFTS NOTHING UNLESS RIGHTLY USED, SENIORS ARE TOLD.

YOUTH MUCH NEEDED

Theirs The Time Of Achievement, Says Rev. W. N. Dewar.—Urges Lives Of Service.

"To be gifted is something but that gift means nothing to the world if not used to a high and noble purpose," the Rev. William N. Dewar, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, said last night at the baccalaureate services held last night at the Methodist Episcopal Church for the graduating classes of the Maryville High School and the High School department of the State Teachers College. The theme of his address was "The World's Need of Youth."

"Wisdom, wealth, pleasure and happiness are not the only faculties in life to be sought. Life is made better by them but not worth a seating under the sun if not enlarged to a greater service.

"If all these faculties are used in vanity then they be vexation of spirit," the Reverend Dewar said.

"The spiritual element ought to dominate the business world. That influence is being sought more and more in the world of affairs. The task of the world is too great and valuable to be animated by any other than the spiritual.

"Service means spiritual growth as well as supplying the world with commodities."

The Reverend Mr. Dewar pointed out to the graduates that strong conviction and dauntless courage are vital to success to in the public, private, industrial and political life of the world.

"Education has gotten its value from the contribution that has been made to it by youth. Education has made for opportunity," he added.

"It is not how long we life but how."

"Youth is the time of achievement. The growth of the world is directed by youth."

He gave a summary of the young men of the world's history, who have achieved marvelously. He mentioned the Ceasars, Alexander, Napoleon, Byron, Shelley, Burns, Pitt, Newton and others.

"It is well to think of self, even if over-estimating; if you think you are beaten, you are; if you think you dare not, you won't; and if you lose, you are lost."

ARRESTED AT FARM DANCE

TWO YOUNG MEN CHARGED WITH VIOLATING DRY LAW.

HAD 6 PINTS LIQUOR

Harley Anderson, 21, and Floyd Draper, 24, Giving Homes As Omaha, Face Circuit Court Trial.

Harley Anderson, 21, and Floyd Draper, 24, both giving their homes as Omaha, were arrested Saturday night at a dance given by William Ramey, about four miles northwest of Wilcox, and have been charged with transportation of intoxicating liquor.

Anderson and his family formerly lived in Maryville, leaving here about three years ago.

Six pints of what Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell described as "red liquor" were taken from the two young men and their car, owned by Draper. Some of the liquor, according to the officers, was found on Anderson and Draper, some in the seat pockets of the car and some above the windshield. An attempt was made to destroy part of the liquor, the officers said.

The two men waived preliminary hearing this morning in the justice court of W. L. Johnson and were bound over to the Circuit Court, with bond set at $1,000 each.

With Draper and Anderson in the car, according to the officers, were Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Morrissey and the latter's sister, Rosa Anderson.

The arrests were made by Sheriff Campbell, together with John Rasco and Harve England, deputy sheriffs, and Lloyd Heifner.

Ramey has been holding dances regularly on what is known as the old Art Wilson farm.

Shenandoah Students Visit Maryville Today

Visitors Inspect College, Tour Maryville, Welcomed By Lamkin, and Remain for May Fete

About sixty high school students from Shenandoah, Ia., were visitors at the State Teachers College today. The Iowa delegation arrived in Maryville about 10 o'clock this morning. After a tour of the city, under the guidance of student council members of the College, they had a picnic lunch in the College park.

The visitors inspected the College buildings and were given an opportunity to swim in the pool in the gymnasium. At 1:20 o'clock this afternoon Uel W. Lamkin, president of the College, spoke to the visitors in the College auditorium.

The delegation planned to remain in Maryville until after the May Fete at the College late this afternoon.

Dick Reynolds Again "Goes Berserk" Today

Former County Farm Patient Tries With Knife, Ax, and Iodine to Kill Self

Dick Reynolds, former patient at the county farm, who became mentally unbalanced and who secluded himself in a South Hester street barn Saturday morning, holding off officers for two hours by threatening to kill himself with a razor, "went berserk" again this afternoon.

Reynolds was committed to State Hospital No. 2 by the County Court this morning. He was taken to the county farm to be prepared for the journey, and there he repeated his attempts to take his own life.

Seizing a knife, the patient broke away from the county judges and the employes at the infirmary. When he was caught by Donald ("Buck") Thompson and deprived of the knife, he made another dash for an ax. Foiled in this attempt he attempted, a few minutes later, to seize a bottle of iodine with which his self-inflicted wounds of Saturday were being dressed. He was not successful in getting it to his mouth however.

Sheriff Lowell Campbell will take Reynolds to the hospital this afternoon as a county patient.

Sheriff Gives a Bed and Breakfast to Two

The boys were allowed to go on their way this morning.

The headquarters of the industry was said to be at Scranton, Pa.

HOT PRIMARY FIGHT ENDED

QUAKER STATE SCENE OF TURBULENT CAMPAIGN

MUCH MONEY SPENT

Wet and Dry Issue Makes Outcome in Doubt—Powerful Mellon Interests Backing Pepper

Washington, May 17.—The chances of Senator Pepper to win the Pennsylvania Republican nomination tomorrow are very good, Secretary of Treasury Mellon declared today after a conference with President Coolidge.

Mr. Coolidge and Mellon discussed the Pennsylvania political situation for half an hour. Mellon leaves this afternoon for Pittsburgh.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 17—Pennsylvania's slam-bang primary fight, the bitterest and most costly in a generation, came to a close today in a wealth of charges and countercharges and a vast outpouring of money, which has already set a new high mark in expenditures in a state political contest.

Tomorrow, the voters go to the polls to select a candidate for United States Senator, governor and a number of state officers and in nearly every case the outcome is in doubt, a situation almost unprecedented in Keystone politics, so long dominated by Penrose and Quay.

Chief interest centers in the Senatorial fight between Senator George W. Pepper, backed by the powerful Mellon interests of the state, Representative William S. Vare, the boss of Philadelphia, and Governor Gifford Pinchot, the hottest rebel of Pennsylvania Republicanism. All vociferously claim victory and these claims are already mixed with the cries of fraud, already ringing from the Schuylkill to the Monongahela river.

Publicly, the various leaders proclaim victory. Privately, they admit that it is very, very close. The prominent injection of the wet and dry issue into this three-ring political circus is expected to remove all the time honored political earmarks and guiding posts by which a lieutenant of the old Penrose machine used to calculate a Pennsylvania election to the precision of a gnat's heel.

Former K. U. Athlete is Charged With First Degree Robbery of Restaurant in New York

New York, May 17.—Trial of Alexander Hodges, former University of Kansas athlete, on a first degree robbery charge, will begin this afternoon before Judge William Allen in General Sessions, the court announced before the noon recess. Judge Allen has been trying an arson case and as it sped toward conclusion, he ordered Hodges and his attorneys notified that selection of jurors would begin this afternoon.

W. E. Goforth went to Creston, Ia., today to attend a meeting this afternoon of railroad officials.

WIND DAMAGES BIG DIRIGIBLE

SMALL CREW AT TELLER IS INSUFFICIENT.

IS SPEEDLY REPAIRED

Thrills Of Flight Over Pole Described By Capt. Amundsen And Lieut. Lincoln Ellsworth.

Nome, Alaska, May 17—The dirigible Norge was considerably damaged following its landing at Teller, Alaska.

A scant score of men, available at Teller, were insufficient in number to prevent the huge dirigible from switching about in the wind, following its partial deflation.

The Norge was viewed by this correspondent following an airplane dash from Nome in forty-five minutes on the first plane to make the flight from Nome to Teller.

But the damage done to the big airship by the winds, following its landing and dismantling process, which is well under way, is being rapidly repaired. It required but thirty minutes to let the gas out of the Norge when it landed at Teller.

"No sleep and lots of hardships," was the personal side of the flight over the pole, "but well worth it."

"I am glad to be here," said Captain Amundsen today.

"Hungry as a horse," was the typical American expression which came first from Lincoln Ellsworth, only American aboard the dirigible, on his arrival here.

The flight over the pole was accomplished under ideal flying conditions, members of the party declared here today. But on this side of the pole, snow, fog and storms were encountered, which made the flight hazardous.

Plane in Nose Dive; Two Marines Killed

San Diego, May 17.—Sgt. J. B. Davis, pilot, and private R. C. Thrasher, both of the marine observation squadron, North Island, were killed today when their plane crashed at Ream field near Camp Hearno.

The plane took a nose dive and, according to witnesses, plunged about 100 feet. Both men were crushed so tightly within the wreckage that many minutes passed before rescuers could release the bodies. Both were said to be dead when found.

President Lauded for States Rights Views

But Reed of Missouri and Harrison of Mississippi Condemn Coolidge's Address at Williamsburg.

Washington, May 17.—The Cooidge administration was subjected to a bitter Democratic assault in the Senate this afternoon while at the same time President Coolidge was being warmly praised for his advocacy of state rights in his address at Williamsburg, Va., Saturday.

The President was lauded for his attack on the centralization of federal power by Senator King, Democrat of Utah, and Senator Mayfield, Democrat of Texas, both referring to the speech as an indorsement of the Democratic doctrine.

Meanwhile, the President's address was condemned by Senator Reed, Democrat of Missouri, and Senator Pat Harrison, Democrat of Mississippi.

COOLIDGE'S STAND FOR STATES RIGHTS.

Amid all the contentions of the present day nothing is more important to secure the continuation of what they (the founders of the republic) wrought than a constant and vigilant resistance to the domination of selfish and private interests in the affairs of government, in order that liberty and justice may still be secure and public welfare may still be supreme.—President Coolidge in his Williamsburg address.

President Coolidge has been a consistent advocate of decentralization in government. He has urged upon states to cherish their sovereign rights and assume their sovereign obligations. He has urged upon congress to respect those rights and not to disregard those obligations. But the most emphatic utterance he has made on this subject was that embodied in his address at Williamsburg, Va., Saturday. He warned the people, state officials and congress against the increasing power and activity of minorities, both sectional and class, and against the danger of increasing bureaucracy resulting from minority coercion.

It was a timely call for sober reflection, a timely assertion of nationalism. The more the states exalt themselves in perfecting their governments, the more they exalt the federal government by giving it only those functions that a federation of lesser sovereignties necessarily must delegate to it. We have a continuous spectacle of sections and special interests seeking to accomplish through congress things that, if in themselves worthy, should be accomplished through the state legislatures. We have the spectacle of these special interests bringing such pressure on congress as to override its judgment. In recent years tremendous drains have been put upon the treasury, and therefore tremendous burdens on the taxpayers, not because congress has thought such imposition just, but because the organized lobby has shown political strength too great for many of the members to resist. On this point the President said:

"Direct primaries and direct elections bring to bear on the political fortunes of public officials the greatly disproportionate influence of organized minorities. Artificial propaganda, paid agitators, selfish interests, all impinge upon members of legislative bodies to force them to represent special interests rather than the great body of their constituency. When they are successful, minority rule is established, and the result is an extravagance on the part of the government which is ruinous to the people, and a multiplicity of regulations and restrictions for the conduct of all kinds of necessary business, which becomes little less than oppressive."

Paternalism toward states is belittling to the states. Acceptance of paternalism is inimical to state dignity and state pride and affects wholesome state rivalry and state achievement. Organization for propaganda has reached a stage where members of legislative bodies, unless they are conspicuously courageous, are designated as for this or that special interest policy. Highly financed propaganda has largely superseded deliberate reasoning. The paid agent is abroad in force, and collectively he has overridden congress by the "disproportionate influence" he wields through the strong minorities back of him. Must he be tolerated until he completely dominates the federal government and the states are left to perform only the legislative chores?—Kansas City Times.

WHY BANQUETS ARE T BORE.

(Brooklyn Eagle).

Now that the banquet season is nearly at an end it may be timely to reveal why so many public dinners are a hopeless bore to those who feel compelled to attend. "Feel compelled" is used advisedly, for the chances are against coming away inspired or entertained. Most of us go to public dinners to be "among those present." We feel a sense of loyalty to the organization which gives the banquet or to the guest of honor. We expect to be bored and usually realize our expectations.

But is this necessary? Would it not be possible to provide a course of education for dinner committees and toastmasters that would at least result in beginning and ending dinners on time? Half the pain we suffer at such public functions would disappear if we could only be certain that all would be over by 10:30 p. m. And no dinner occasion should be permitted to drag beyond that hour.

Speaking at a banquet should be organized like a good play. There should be a brisk first act, an entertaining second and a dramatic third. A fourth should only be added as a pleasant ending if all the others have been mercifully brief.

The toastmaster must be an autocrat. He should plan out his time schedule to a minute, submit it to his speakers for their acceptance and then hold to it with Napoleonic determination. Someone should invent a banquet stopwatch which will give a warning click at the end of the eighteenth of the 20 minutes allotted to the most important speaker. At the end of the twentieth minute this watch should buzz loudly enough to be heard by both speaker and toastmaster. If the speaker has not concluded the toastmaster must rise to his feet, urbanely but determinedly. Where he has announced the time schedule beforehand, no speaker will dare poach on anothers' preserves.

Many brilliant 20-minute speeches have been spoiled by being dragged out to 30, 40 or 50 minutes. Memory fails to record any dinner that was spoiled because of the speeches were too short. Let us save the speakers from themselves and they will be as grateful to us as the audience will be to them.

One Man Is Injured in Embassy Explosion

Building at Buenos Aires Damaged When Bomb Goes Off in Door —Order Rigid Investigation

Washington, May 17—One man, a cafe proprietor, was slightly wounded in the explosion of a bomb in the American embassy at Buenos Aires, the state department was informed today. Several windows across the street from the embassy were broken.

The damage to the embassy was not described.

Ambassador Jay at Buenos Aires said that the fuse of the bomb exploded in the door of the chancery and pieces picked up by military and naval attaches showed that the bomb weighed from eight to ten pounds.

The Argentine minister of interior and the police authorities called at the embassy to offer regrets and promised a rigid investigation.

THIS WEEK IN MISSOURI HISTORY

Compiled by
The State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia

May 16-22.

Next week commemorates the beginning of Spanish occupation of upper Louisiana. On May 20, 1770, Captain Pedro Piernas arrived in St. Louis with the title of "lieutenant-governor of San Luis, San Genevieva and the districts of the Misuri River and the Ylinneses in the province of Luisiana." This office was conferred by Alexander O'Reilly, captain-general of Louisiana from 1769 to 1770, and was confirmed by the King of Spain on August 17, 1772.

The first effort of the Spanish to occupy upper Louisiana was made in 1767 when Ulloa, then governor of Louisiana, sent an expedition to the mouth of the Missouri river to erect two forts, one on each side of the river. A large fort, called "El Principe des Asturias," was erected on the south side and a blockhouse was built on the north side. The project did not prosper. The officers were soon engaged in disputes with each other and some of the soldiers deserted. Ulloa removed the commander, Captain Rui, and named Don Pedro Piernas as his successor. Piernas made the long journey from New Orleans up the Mississippi to Ste. Genevieve, then to St. Louis and on to the fort at the mouth of the Missouri in 1769. A few days after he assumed command he was ordered to surrender the possessions to the French commander, St. Ange, who was thus officially placed in charge of upper Louisiana by the Spanish. Piernas returned to New Orleans and was appointed lieutenant-governor of upper Louisiana by O'Reilly.

Captain Piernas reached St. Louis the second time on May 20, 1770. He had an order from O'Reilly including thirty-two items which were to be strictly observed. The first item stated that "there are three primary objects to be looked after and the lieutenant-governor shall attend to them with special vigilance. These are that the dominion and government of His Majesty be loved and respected; justice administered promptly, impartially, and according to the laws; and that commerce be protected and increased as much as possible." A number of orders were concerned with the attitude to be adopted toward the English and the Indians. Piernas was to maintain the greatest possible harmony with the English, and to punish promptly all excesses committed by any subject of Spain within English territory or any insult offered the English while navigating the Mississippi. Friendly relations were to be cultivated with the Indians. No trader was to be permitted in the Indian villages unless the commandant had good reports on his conduct but the commandant "shall not refuse his license to anyone who shall be recognized as an honest man." Piernas was instructed to "cause the Indians to know the greatness, clemency and generosity of the King."

Military affairs were a matter of special care to O'Reilly. He ordered that the troops be kept under good discipline, but treated with justice by their officers. St. Louis, Ste. Genevieve and the fort on the Missouri river were all to be garrisoned. To St. Louis were allotted two sergeants, five corporals, a drummer, and 25 soldiers; to Ste. Genevieve, a lieutenant, a corporal, and seven soldiers; to the fort on the Missouri, one sergeant and six soldiers; a total of 48 men for the protection of the King's domain of upper Louisiana. Two pairs of shoes, two pairs of stockings, two shirts, and one suit of clothes were to be furnished each of the soldiers annually. Their compensation was the small regular pay of the army and even Piernas received only $375 a year. Prisons were to be built, the census taken, crop and fur reports made, etc.

A militia was to be established in each of the villages. Each militia company was to have eleven officers and "the number of soldiers that each village shall be able to include, this militia including all the men capable of bearing arms, between the ages of fifteen and fifty years." The militia enlistment was not to be at all burdensome on the citizens. To prevent this O'Reilly ordered that "each one shall continue in his trade, and no hindrance shall be offered him in leaving when it is advisable. They shall be assembled on Sundays when the weather permits." The Lieutenant-governor was to see that the militia was trained in "quarterwheeling" and firing but "he shall avoid in these exercises the wasting of the King's powder." The last injunction of O'Reilly in regard to the militia was that "all the discipline and treatment of this troop shall be so mild that they will be greatly satisfied with the new formation." These instructions were approved by the King on August 17, 1772, "in toto."

The first Spanish statistical report for St. Louis and Ste. Genevieve was made by Pedro Piernas for the year 1772. St. Louis embraced a total population of 597 persons, 399 of whom were whites and 198 slaves. In Ste. Genevieve there were 404 whites and 287 slaves, total of 691 persons. There were 5,898 quintals, 589,800 pounds, of flour harvested in the two villages during 1772. The report serves to indicate that wheat was not replaced by corn in the Louisiana country until the coming of the Americans.

St. Louis, Piernas described as being situated on a high and pleasant place, built on rocks, and not in any danger of inundation, a higher plain behind the village dominating the town and river. The town to him appeared suitable for the construction of a fort. He predicted that "if the people of Paincourt (St. Louis) will continue with the energy that they have hitherto exhibited they will make the settlement one of the most populous, extensive, well managed and respectable of all that have been established." The upper Louisiana territory at this time was known as the Ylinneses (Illinois) country. During the administration of Piernas, in 1774 the first village prison in St. Louis was constructed. It was a small stone structure built against one of the gable ends of the house built by Laclede. The cost of the prison was $165.

Don Pedro Joseph Piernas was a Spaniard by birth. He came to New Orleans with Ulloa, a captain in the Spanish service. In 1785 Piernas was colonel of the Louisiana Regiment at New Orleans in which office he was very successful. He was in Spanish service thirty years. Piernas was a "man of dignity" and this, so it is said, "made him distasteful to the Indians as they mistook this reserve, so different from the affability of the French, as evidence of personal dislike." He was known to be an officer of kind liberal disposition. He was succeeded as lieutenant governor of Louisiana in 1775 by Don Francesco Cruzat.

SEES NO NEED FOR HIGH TAX

BRITISH PUBLIC RELIEVED BY CHURCHILL'S STATEMENT.

BACK TO WORK TODAY

Red Menace, If Any, Was Smashed During General Strike, Officials Say.

London, May 17—The British public breathed in relief today when Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, announced in the House of Commons that there is no reason for increased taxation to meet the government's expenses in opposing the recent general strike.

Churchill said that he did not anticipate that the current finances would be seriously disturbed by the strike costs.

London began getting its first complete reports of the strike this afternoon when evening newspapers resumed publication.

Slowly and haltingly, like the convalescing invalid taking his first careful steps, Great Britain went back to work today. The wheels of commerce and industry, rusted by a fortnight of idleness, began to grind again.

London, May 17.—If there ever was a red menace in Great Britain it has been smashed during the general strike, according to a statement made to the International News from official quarters today.

During the general strike, under emergency powers issued to the government, five hundred leading communists were placed under arrest, it was stated. A thousand other reds were either detained or placed under surveillance. Two hundred and fifty aliens were deported. Raids made on communists' headquarters brought about the capture of all complete communistic documents.

Around Our Town

Saturday night five men made elaborate preparations for a big fishing expedition. They were to go to Albany that night and return yesterday. Not a hitch was found in the plans. Everything went as per schedule.

Yesterday the five men returned to Maryville. They took turns carrying the one fish which had been caught.

The men were Bernard Bickett, Bob Mozingo, P. R. Moore, Charles Ross and John From.

MERCHANTS IN 5-2 VICTORY

HOPKINS BASEBALL TEAM LOSES HERE YESTERDAY.

WIN IN ONE INNING

Hopkins Scores Two Runs in Second and Maryville Team Tallies Five in Sixth.

The Maryville Merchants baseball team won a 5-2 victory over the Hopkins nine on the local fairgrounds diamond yesterday afternoon before a better-than-average crowd.

The game was an exciting one. Hits were plentiful, each team getting ten. Three Maryville errors and two for Hopkins aided in features of the eight and a half innings.

Each team did its entire scoring in one inning. Hopkins opened in the second and scored two runs. The game was then scoreless until the sixth, when the Maryville team, after two men had been disposed of, ran into a hitting spree and won the contest.

After two men were out in the sixth, Roy Arthur, Merchants' third baseman, walked. Mayes bit to short as Arthur was stealing for second. Both men were safe. After a conference between the Hopkins battery, Woolen was walked. Laughlin, local pitcher, then doubled into deep center, and the three men on bases scored. England next dropped a neat single over third, and C. Mayes followed suit. A single to left by Smith scored both of these men. Then Cain grounded out to second.

The visitors played a good brand of baseball and the Merchants were more than satisfactory to the fans who attended the game, which was the first of ten to be played in Maryville.

The score:

Bradley's entries, Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage, spread-eagled the Kentucky Derby field at Louisville Saturday afternoon and ran one-two in the fifty-second renewal of the greatest of American turf classics.

Rockman was third, well beaten by the Bradley pair, which simply galloped away with the rich turf prize, worth $50,000 this year, leaving the field, including the vaunted Pompey, pride of the East, far behind. Rhinock was fourth and Pompey was fifth.

The time was 2.03 4-5.

CHAPTER XL.

"Do you mean he's given up his job?" asked Audrey.

Morton nodded. "Said he was a failure at everything. But the thing that seemed to be hurting him most was that you didn't like him.

"Stop worrying about him now, and let's get something to eat." He glanced at her shrewdly from beneath his lashes. Audrey did not answer.

Over the luncheon table in an exclusive tea room, she leaned toward him, her face very grave. "Will you tell me one single thing that I am good for, Daddy?"

Morton glanced up from his plate. "Now what, Audrey?"

She flushed. "Oh, I know I'm always fussing around and worrying you, but honestly, Daddy, it seems to me nowadays that my life isn't worth living.

"I haven't any work in the world. I don't even manage your house. I'm not much good on the stage, and I hate social life. And I make everybody miserable who comes in touch with me.

"I'm just a fungus growth, clinging around your money and position, and not contributing a thing to the world I live in."

Morton spoke gravely. "You do contribute, Audrey, you contribute to my happiness. I have lived for you ever since you were a little child. Can't you just be happy in my love?"

"I love you too, daddy, but you get more happiness from Nona and these other women than you do from me. If it were otherwise, you'd marry me, and let me really take care of you and be somebody in the world instead of a useless parasite."

"Listen, Audrey. You mustn't talk any more about marriage to me. If you want to manage the house, I'll fire the housekeeper, and let you do it."

"No," she said shortly, "that's useless."

* * *

Nona's show had opened. In the wings the manager, the director and the producer were exchanging congratuations. Their eyes were heavily smudged with fatigue, but also glistening with satisfaction.

In Nona's dressing room, Morton sat quietly, while Nona stretched herself out on a chaise lounge, her eyes closed and her face drawn.

"You are a very great dancer, Nona," he said, "and will be a very famous one."

Nona opened her eyes and an anxious look came over her face. "Are you glad, dear?"

"Of course, I am,' he said.

"Do you know that Sunshine means to back me for an opening in London next fall, if this play holds up"

"Yes," said Morton. "He told me."

Nona looked at him betwen narrowed lids. "And you still hope it will be a success, and that I'll cross the ocean and never see you any more, for months and months, or years and years, maybe?"

Morton crossed the dressing room and stood beside her. "Nona, dear, it's work that counts in this world. I know, because I've been searching for happiness elsewhere, and it simply isn't to be found."

"We don't get anywhere, with this love business, do we?" said Nona, wearily. "I love you, you don't love me. Ditto Audrey. John Parrish loves her, and she doesn't love him —or thinks she doesn't."

"He loves her all right," Morton replied. "You should have seen his face when he said he was quitting his job."

Nona stood up and laid her hands on his shoulders. "Harry, I'm sorry for that boy, because I know what it means to be in love with someone who doesn't love you. It's hades, Harry!

Even if I become a second Pavlowa, I'll never be happy, just because you don't love me. What I want is not public success, but a home, love, contentment. Won't you let me stay with you, Harry?"

Her tired face, with its smudges and streaks of make-up looked almost grotesque under the bright light. Her lips quivering like a child's.

"Nona," he began, "I've been fond of you—you're good, Nona. Regardless of conventional rules for goodness, you are a mighty fine person. You've helped me a lot, and you've helped others. I found you at a time when I sorely needed just the sweet, human sympathy that you gave me.

"But marriage—well, it just isn't in the cards for me. Can't you be happy with that? Can't you throw yourself into your new success and make work your life? I did it once, Nona, when fate had hit me pretty hard, and I know it can be done."

The girl collapsed in the chaise lounge, and covered her face with her hands. Great silent sobs shook her body and she buried her face in the cushions.

"Nona," he began. But the door opened, and Abe Sunshine walked in.

He took in the situation at a glance, and gave Morton a hostile look. Then he crossed to Nona, and began to pat her shoulder. "What's this, my little Nona in tears on the proudest night of her life! Listen, girl, this won't do. Why, Nona, you were a wow tonight! Don't go spoiling your looks for tomorrow's show by crying. What's the matter, anyhow?' He gave Morton another angry glance.

Nona did not answer him, but only twitched her shoulders away from the hand with which he was trying clumsily to comfort her.

"You're tired out, old kid," he went on. "But if there's anything else on your mind, tell old Abe, and he'll make it right. Remember, kid, you and I've got to stick together from now on. Our success and plenty of mazuma depends on it."

She tried to arise, but her knees crumpled weakly beneath her. He caught her, and lifting the light young body, almost ran with her to the stairway, and up to her room.

Morton intervened. "I'll take Miss Nona home in my car. She's exhausted from excitement. And she needs quiet and sleep."

His manner was plain dismissal, and Sunshine ruefully departed.

Morton picked Nona up and wrapped her cloak around her. "Powder your nose, my dear, and we'll go home. The stage entrance will be thronged with Johnnies who mustn't see your nose red."

"I haven't shed any tears," said Nona. "But I wish I could. I feel as if I were going to burst with misery."

Morton sighed. "I wish to heaven I knew what to do for you women," he said. "I try all the time to make you happy and to make Audrey happy, and you're both wretched.'

Nona gave a tremulous little laugh. "That's because we both want to marry you. It's a fine state of affairs, isn't it? And there's nothing you can do."

He put his arms around Nona, as they pushed through the crowd at the stage door, and Nona wearily pulled a veil over her face to shield it from the leering gaze of the men who waited there.

When the car drew up before Nona's apartment house, Morton kissed her, and she clung to him with renewed ardor. But he gently unlaced her fingers from his coat and took her up the steps. "Try to sleep, my dear. Things will look better in the morning."

She nodded hopelessly, as she stepped inside the door.

Stepping into the car again, he bade the chauffeur drive through the park for a while. The windows of the tonneau were open and the cool spring air blew in and fanned his face. Morton lit a cigaret and leaned back on the cushions.

The park drives were deserted, save for his car, and the slopes of grass were silver green under the half moon.

After a while, his body relaxed, and he ordered the driver to turn toward home.

The apartment was quite dark when he entered. Seeing Audrey's cape lying on a chair, he knew that she had come straight home from the theater, when he remained to visit Nona in her dressing room.

As he went up the stairs, he tried not to make any noise, less he wake her. But the rooms resounded with his footsteps. Just outside the door of his own room, he hesitated. There was a faint sound within, as though someone were breathing very fast and hard.

Morton cautiously pushed open the door, and with his fist doubled for a possible intruder, took a step inside the door.

There was no doubt of it. Someone was in the room. He could hear the minute sounds of clothing rubbing against upholstery, and always that quick, soft breathing.

Stepping to the electric switch, he snapped on the current. The flood of light blinded him for a second, before he saw the limp form of Audrey huddled in a great armchair by the window.

She did not look up as he stared at her, but remained crouched in the same strained position, her head bent and her body rigid.

Morton tip-toed nearer and glanced curiously at her face. It was streaked with tears, and one hand held a hard little knot of handkerchief.

"Audrey," he said.

She opened her eyes with a start, and gave a little scream. "Daddy! I thought you'd never come. And I'm so wretched, so horribly wretched!" She began to cry hysterically.

Morton put his arm around her. "Now, Audrey, child, what is the matter? Why are you sitting here by an open window, when you ought to be in your bed?"

She answered him furiously. "Because you went trailing off after Nona, and let me come home alone, and I was afraid you were going to stay with her till morning. And it is almost morning, and I want to die."

Her voice trailed off into unintelligible little gutturals, and her eyes roved wildly about the room.

Thoroughly alarmed, Morton shook her shoulder. "Audrey, stop this at once! You're making yourself sick over nothing, child."

"Don't love me—no use—tired of everything"—these and other phrases came from her lips, but her eyes did not seem to see him.

She tried to arise, but her knees crumpled weakly beneath her. He caught her, and lifting the light young body, almost ran with her to the stairway and up to her room.

Country Girl Sees City; Doesn't Like It

Winner in National Essay Contest Says She Would Rather Live In Country Any Time.

Washington, May 17.—A sturdy little country girl from Minnesota, a stranger to big cities, street cars, flappers, sheiks, and the Charleston, has seen the sights of a big town for the first time and has returned to the farm, and said she was happy to go.

Dorothy Utley, 14-year old blond eighth grader of the little town of Bemidji, Minn., wrote the best essay in the national contest of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce. She won a free trip to Washington and a gold watch. She is pleased with the watch, is interested in the city sights, but said before leaving here, that she was glad to get back home and put off the Sunday clothes and enjoy a game of baseball, her favorite sport.

She told the United Press before departing that country life is much better than city life and that she is happy to shun flapperdom. She'd rather "see a baseball game than a dozen movies," she informed the correspondent.

"Sheiks," she asserted, "make me sick and flappers are simply funny. It makes me laugh to think of them doing the Charleston."

Dorothy prefers wild west tales to love stories. "I like exciting Indian stories with lots of action," she said.

Dorothy admitted, cheerfully, that housework is disagreeable to her.

But It Wasn't Her Watch Which Maid Found on the Floor

A certain Fredonia woman, not long ago, had occasion to go to a neighboring town for a visit of a few days, and upon her arrival there discovered that she had lost her watch, a small affair, which she thought she had dropped on the dinning room rug, so she wrote the hired girl at home as follows: "Let me know if you find anything on the dining room rug." A few days later she received a letter from the girl, saying: "Dear Madame: I was to let you know if I found anything on the rug in the dining room. This is what I found this morning: Thirteen empty beer bottles, 19 cigar butts, five cigaret ends, 14 blue and 21 red poker chips, 36 burned matches and one pink satin slipper." The wife hired an auto and was home in a few hours.—Altoona, (Kan)., Tribune.

Chet and Charles Gilbert Arrested

Pint of Liquor Found in Their Car in Southeast Maryville This Morning

Chet and Charles Gilbert were arrested this morning by Barney Dougan, city marshal, and John Rasco, deputy sheriff, in southeast Maryville on a charge of having a pint of liquor. They were turned over to the state and a possession charge will be filed against them by George Pat Wright, prosecuting attorney.

The officers were called to Southeast Maryville when the Gilbert boys were driving around in their car, both of them being drunk. A pint of liquor was found in the car by the officers.

Two Barns Burn in County on Saturday

Fire At Harry Fryar Farm In The Afternoon And One At T. M. Folden Farm At Night.

Two barn fires, both of unknown origin, occurred in this county Saturday. About 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon, fire was discovered in the barn on the Harry Fryar farm, eight miles southeast of Maryville. Mrs. Fryar was the only person at home. She succeeded in getting one horse out of the barn, but two others and a calf, along with 400 bushels of corn and a hayrack, were destroyed by the fire. There was $900 in insurance on the barn but nothing on the contents.

About 10:30 o'clock Saturday night the barn on the T. M. Folden farm, six and a half miles northwest of Skidmore, owned by R. L. Bilby, was burned along with 150 bushels of corn and several sets of harness. There was no insurance.

Kurt Landon Will Go to Military Academy

Last week's issue of the Carlinville, Ill., Democrat had the following about Kurt Landon, son of P. O. Landon of Carlinville, formerly a resident of Maryville:

Kurt Landon will enter the United States Military academy at West Point next July. Notice of his selection has just reached him. Congressman L. E. Wheeler named him some time ago as an alternate and he took the regular examination. The principal failed in the test and so the honor of going to West Point has fallen to the alternate. He is a son of P. O. Landon, of Carlinville, and graduated last year from the Carlinville high school. His brother, Truman Landon, is concluding his second year in West Point and during the last two years of his attendance there Kurt will also be a cadet. Probably not before in the history of the institution have two brothers been students in that institution at the same time. Kurt is receiving congratulations of friends upon his good fortune.

Teapot Dome Case to Judges This Afternoon

Court Rules That All Arguments Must Be Completed by 5 o'Clock—Kenyon Announces Decision.

St. Paul, May 17. — Three federal judges in the United States circuit court here today ruled that all arguments must be completed by 5 o'clock this afternoon in the re-opening of the Teapot Dome controversy by the government, which requests an appeal from the lower courts and that Harry F. Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Co., be restricted from draining the naval oil reserves in Wyoming.

The decision of the judges was announced by Judge Kenyon of Iowa. With him on the bench was judge Arba Van Valkenburgh of Kansas City and Judge William Cant of Duluth, Minn.

At 5 o'clock this afternoon, the arguments made by Atlee Pomerene of Cleveland in behalf of the government and Martin Littleton of New York for the defense will be taken under advisement.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, May 17.—Grain prices closed lower on the Chicago Board of Trade today. The pressure felt by wheat and corn dominated the market.

Wheat quotations were sharply off in all deliveries. The market was unsettled throughout the day, and July dropped at one time to the lowest price on the present movement. The weakness of corn accelerated the drop in wheat. Weather news from the Northwest was bullish but had no effect on such bearish factors as the foreign exchange, which reached a record low for Belgium and put a stop to practically all export business.

Corn was under pressure early in the day and closed sharply lower in all deliveries.

Oats closed fractionally lower for May and July and sharply lower for September, feeling the influence of corn and wheat.

Provisions closed higher.

BEARCATS GET BUT 4 THIRDS

STATE TRACK AND FIELD MEET TO WARRENSBURG.

SPRINGFIELD SECOND

Seven State Records Broken And One Equaled in M. I. A. A. Classic Held Saturday.

The local State Teachers College Bearcats ran fifth in the Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association track and field meet at Springfield Saturday, scoring only 4 points in the yearly track classic of the state teachers colleges.

John Smith won third place in the half-mile, Ungles was third in the low hurdles, Hollar was third in the shot put, and Captain Joy was third in the javelin throw.

Seven state records were broken and another equaled as the Warrensburg Mules grabbed nine first places, tied for two others, and scored four seconds and three thirds to win the most hotly-contested meet in years. This was the first time in six years that the Springfield team has not won the state title. At that, they were barely nosed out, Warrensburg scoring 62 points to 56 for the team coached by "Speedy" Collins. Kirksville scored 14½ points, Cape Girardeau 6½, and Maryville 4.

Kennedy of Warrensburg won high-point honors in the meet by scoring two firsts and a second for 13 points. Carl Davis, Springfield trackster, was second with 11 points, and Ralph Brown of Warrensburg was third with 10 points.

Harris of Cape Girardeau proved to be a "dark horse" in the meet, when he equalled the state record of 16 seconds in the high hurdles, beating out Captain Walter Reynaud of Springfield, title [illegible].

The records which fell in the meet were: 100, 220, and 440-yard dashes, discus, Javelin, 2-mile run, and low hurdles.

Kennedy set a new record in the javelin by hurling the spear 176 feet, 11½ inches. He also set a new record of 134 feet, 4 inches in the discus.

Adam Fischer of Springfield, set a new record of 51.4 seconds in the 440 yard dash, while Ralph Brown, of Warrensburg, shattered the 100 and 220 yard dash marks.

Captain Walter Reynaud bettered his own mark, which he established last year, in the low hurdles, winning that event in 26 seconds flat.

In the two-mile run, Townsend of Warrensburg, bettered the old state record, setting a new time of 10 minutes, 23 6-10 seconds. In the high hurdles, the third man disqualified and the fourth failed to finish.

Warrensburg won all the cups offered in the meet, taking the sweepstakes trophy donated by Lowe & Campbell, of Kansas City, the two relay cups and the individual scoring cup.

The Maryville team, which made the trip to Springfield in automobiles, returned last night.
